WHO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR WHAT AND WHERE?

Once the property has been let some responsibilities move from the Landlord to the tenant and vice versa. Most of this is common sense but very often confusion and lack of understanding of the generated responsibility on both parties can and does cause conflicting reports from all concerned. To try to alleviate this common problem, we have put some common examples together.

Repairs to the Property

The internal upkeep and décor of the property and the replacement of consumable items such as light bulbs remains the tenant's responsibility. The Landlord is responsible for the main structure of the building and the fixtures defined under the Landlords Act 1985. Namely sections 10 & 11. In basic terms the Landlord must keep the property in a habitable condition, this covers a multitude of repairs, freedom from damp, natural lighting, ventilation, water supply, drainage stability and sanitary arrangements including areas for the preparation of cooking and food disposal of sewage water. Furthermore section 11 of the same act covers drainage, exterior of the dwelling and this includes the gutters, drains and pipes, installations for water, gas, electricity and sanitary conveniences.

Insurance

The Landlord is responsible for the buildings insurance and it must be understood the tenant cannot be held reckonable or liable for accidental fire or flood. The lease covers the contents of the dwelling area and providing an inventory has been taken and signed by the tenant then he be held responsible for any damage other than fair wear and tear. It is however, sensible for the Landlord to take out some form of public liability insurance or company insurance designed for renting and letting to cover him. The tenant can also be asked to take out insurance but this is unenforceable.

Water Rates and Council Tax

You will be pleased to know that the tenant is liable, providing the agencies are informed. Those of you who have multiple lets and these charges levied against the tenants rent, must remember that the responsibility remains yours.

Electricity, Gas and Telephone

The tenant will always have to pay for such services, again once all agencies have been informed. With the introduction of the Monopolies Commission please ensure that the billing company name and address is given to us for electric, gas and telephone.

Wear and Tear

This is going to be a factor in any rental situation, again common sense must prevail, however it is going to be proportional to the occupancy levels and the amount of tenants in the property

PREPARING THE PROPERTY FOR LETTING

We found that a good relationship with tenants is the key to a smooth running tenancy. As property managers the relationship is part of the job, but it is important that the tenants should feel comfortable in their temporary home, and that they are receiving value for money. This is your job. Our policy of offering a service of quality and care therefore extends to our tenant application too, and we are pleased to recommend properties to rent that conform to certain minimum standards. Quality properties attract quality tenants and better rents.

General Condition

Electrical, gas, plumbing waste, central heating and hot water systems must be safe, sound and in good working order. Repairs and maintenance are at the landlord's expense unless misuse can be established.

Appliances

Similarly, appliances such as washing machines, fridge, freezer, cooker, dishwasher etc should be in usable condition. Repairs and maintenance are at the landlord's expense unless misuse can be established.

Decorations

Interior decorations should be in a good condition, and preferably plain, light and neutral furnishing. It is recommended that you leave only minimum furnishings, and these should be of reasonable quality. It is preferable that items being left are in the property during viewings. A list of contents will be made available if needed.

Personal items, ornaments etc.

Personal possessions, ornaments, pictures, books etc should be removed from the premises, especially those of value. Some items may be boxed, sealed and stored in the loft at the owner's risk. All cupboards and shelf space should be left for the tenant's own use.

Gardens

Gardens should be left neat and tidy and rubbish free, with any lawns cut. Tenants are required to maintain the gardens standard, provided they are left the necessary tools. However few tenants are experienced gardeners and if you value your garden, or it is particularly large you may wish to arrange visits by your gardener.

Cleaning

At the commencement of the tenancy the property must be in a thoroughly clean condition, and at the end of each tenancy it is the tenant's responsibility to leave the property in a similar condition. Where they fail to do so, cleaning should be at their expense.

Mail Forwarding

We recommend that you make use of the post office redirection service. Application forms are available at the counters and the cost is minimal. It is not the tenant's responsibility to forward mail.

Non Resident Landlord Tax

If you are planning to live abroad while your property is rented you must contact your local tax office and obtain a Non Resident Landlord number. This is the landlord's responsibility to disclose to the company.

GAS AND ELECTRICAL APPLIANCE REGULATIONS

The following regulations impose duties on the Landlord that if broken can lead to criminal prosecution. Whilst they place an onerous duty on you as a Landlord letting property, they are easy to comply with a relatively small outlay.

GAS APPLIANCES

With affect from October 31st 1994 all gas appliances must be checked by a CORGI registered gas fitter on no less than an annual basis if the property is let. This is imposed by S35 of the gas safety installation and use regulations 1994 statutory instrument 1994 No 1886.

These regulations impose a duty on the Landlord to keep a record of the appliance to include the date of inspection, the identity of the inspector, defects noted and the remedial action by the inspector. This record must be made available to all tenants who request to see a record.

User S36(1) of the health and safety at work act 1974 we as agents can be prosecuted along with yourself as the owner if records are not kept and therefore it is essential that these regulations are complied with.

If you require us to arrange this for you we will do so, however if you arrange this yourself then we require details of the CORGI registered gas fitter making the check on your behalf along with the appropriate information in order that we can comply with this regulation.

ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES

These regulations are similar in their content to the gas regulations in so much as they impose a duty on the Landlord to carry out checks on any electrical items forming part of the let. This is imposed by the low voltage electrical equipment safety regulation 1989 (statutory instrument 1989 No 728)

The Landlord must therefore use a competent qualified electrician to check all appliances. These checks must be carried out on no less than an annual basis.

Failure to comply with these regulations could lead to prosecution pursuant to S12 of the consumer protection act 1987.

Because of the large variation in the number of electrical appliances in the property it has proved difficult to obtain fixed quotes from the contractors, however, we can assure you that if you wish us to instruct a competent qualified electrician to carry out this work it will be on the understanding that the work will be priced in a competitive manner.
